

History Sticky Knowledge

Year R

- I can talk about past events in my own life
I know of someone famous from the past
- I know how to sequence some events .e.g from my own life
- I know words relating to time – old/new, yesterday/tomorrow, now/then, before/after earlier/later, past/present
- I know comparative language – same/different, similar

Year 1

- I know and can use everyday time terms, such as 'now', 'then', 'day', 'month'.
- I know we remember the soldiers who have died on 'Remembrance Day'.
- I know the War Memorial in Orleton has the names of the soldiers from Orleton who died in the War
- I know the meaning of old and new. Old means that something has been around for a long time and new means something hasn't been around for very long.
- I know the difference between old and new toys. New toys can be made out of plastic and can have batteries or be electronic. Old toys can be made out of wood and metal.
- I know and can appropriately use the words 'past', 'present', 'before', 'after', 'today'.

Year 2

- I know and can appropriately use the words 'past', 'present', 'before', 'after', 'today'.
- I know that Queen Victoria died in 1901.
- I know that The Great Fire of London was an event beyond living memory in 1666.
- I know that Florence Nightingale was born in 1820.
- I know that Florence Nightingale went to help the soldiers in the Crimean War in Turkey.
- I know that the Mortimers acquired Ludlow Castle and the family owned it for over a century.

Year 3

- I know that the Ancient Egyptian Timeline is BC (before the year 0)
- I know that my Year 2 history topics were AD events and, therefore, more recent than the Ancient Egyptians
- I can name and order the Egyptian periods: The Old Kingdom, The Middle Kingdom, The New Kingdom
- I know the chronological order of: The Celts, The Romans, The Saxons, The Vikings and the Normans
- I know some Anglo-Saxon place names e.g. Hereford (ford meaning shallow river) / Orleton (ton meaning enclosed village or farm)

Year 4

- I know that the Tudor period was between 1485AD and 1603AD, which preceded the Great Fire of London
- I know that they called the battle, 'The War of Roses' because each side of the battle were represented by a different colour rose -The red rose represented 'the House of Lancaster' and the white rose represented 'the House of York'.
- I know that Henry VIII had 6 wives: Catherine of Aragon (divorced), Anne Boleyn (beheaded), Jane Seymore (died), Anne of Cleves (divorced), Catherine Howard (beheaded), Katherine Parr (survived).
- I know and understand the term 'artefact' to mean ' a man-made object from the past'
- I know that 'Ancient Greece' refers to the period 800BC – 146BC

Year 5

- I know how to place the Romans on a timeline in comparison to some of the time periods studied in years 3 and 4.
- I know Romans finally conquered Britain in 43AD (Claudius)
- I know the Romans withdraw from Britain in 410 AD
- I know there was resistance to the Roman invasion and Boudicca led the rebellion against the Romans
- know that World War II took place between 1939 and 1945.
- I know that many children were evacuated to safer locations, such as the countryside.

Year 6

- I know that the term 'anno domini' (AD) means the period of history after the year 0 and after the birth of Jesus Christ
- I know that the term 'before Christ' (BC) means the period of history before the year 0 and before the birth of Jesus Christ
- I know that the Stone Age is organised into three 'Eras': the Paleolithic Era (c. 30,000BC), the Mesolithic (or Middle) Era (c.8,000BC), and the Neolithic (or New) Era (c.4,500-3,500 BC)
- I know that the Amesbury Archer was buried close to Stonehenge with some bronze arm-guards and beakers made by the 'Beaker People' c. 2,300BC. This was the start of the Bronze Age.
- I know and understand that the Maya were an ancient civilisation who lived in Central America in the countries of Honduras, Belize, Mexico, Guatemala and El Salvador c. 250-900AD
- I know and understand that at the same time, Anglo-Saxons and Vikings were living in Britain